2 What are cookies?

This website uses cookies like many other websites. Cookies are small pieces of data that may be stored on your computer or other device by your web browser when you visit a website.

Cookies are used to provide website owners like Computershare with information about their visitors' preferences and actions, such as which pages are visited. Cookies cannot examine your computer, read data from it or in any other way share personal information stored on your computer with others.

3 Why do we use cookies?

Cookies enable us to improve your user experience and provide you with relevant content across our website. We may use cookies to:

- Support essential site functionality, including security monitoring;
- distinguish between visitors;
- improve the use and the functionality of our website; and tailor our website and products to your needs and preferences.

The information collected by cookies on our website may include personal data, such as your IP address or session ID. In some cases, this may allow us to identify you. You have rights regarding how we collect, store and use your personal data.

For more details concerning your rights and how we may use any personal data we collect, please refer to our Privacy Notice available on EquatePlus.

4 Categories of cookies?

- Essential cookies: Also termed strictly necessary cookies, these cookies are fundamental to website functionality and cannot be switched off without blocking features or compromising security of the site.

- Functional cookies: these are used to enhance your experience (e.g. remember settings) and are set with an expiry period of one year.

- Tracking and performance cookies: these cookies are not used on this site.

- Targeting and advertising cookies: these cookies are not used on this site
